

community education,
equality and social change

taught MA
NUI Maynooth

deadline: May 29th 2010

For decades community groups, the women's movement and other social justice movements have been the driving force behind equality in Ireland, while global justice activists have highlighted the crisis of climate change and neo-liberalism. As economies falter and social partnership collapses, what do we already know about how to change the world? This course brings together experienced activists in community education and social movements with those interested and motivated about social justice to create new knowledge and develop alternatives. Do you want to join us on this learning journey?

[http://
ceesa-ma.
blogspot.com](http://ceesa-ma.blogspot.com)

